Kneelers complete

Celebrating five-years' work

ST Michael's Festival of Flowers & Music in Galmington will offer an exciting weekend from Friday, September 30-Sunday, October 2, with something to suit all tastes, including a wide range of concerts.

Cambridge duo who are coming to Taunton to perform at the Church on Friday, September 30, 7.30pm, as part of Make Poverty History.

It has taken five years and a million stitches to complete St Michael's Millennium Kneelers (see picture) — a set of eight unique designs designed by local artist Margaret Bibby and completed by parishioners for the church.

Concert tickets are £10 from 01823-332371 or 275336. They include a complimentary drink on arrival. Profits will be given to The Samaritan Community Orphanage, Zambia.

They aim to celebrate in style through wonderful floral displays and an exciting programme of music and drama throughout the weekend, to include a performance by Note for A Child, the popular

What madness?

"IS THIS a dagger I see before me?" No wonder the Fool and the Duchess exchange a bemused look! Does a balloon on a stick look remotely like a dagger? Or is the Duke playing with words in a quirky, comedy way? Or is he mad? He certainly looks it in this moment (right), captured during a Taunton Thespians' rehearsal for their production of Terry Pratchett's classic Wyrd Sisters which is playing now at Taunton's Tacchi-Morris Arts Centre.

Adapted for the stage by Stephen Briggs, at least one member of the cast feels that it is even funnier than the book. Wyrd Sisters runs until Saturday (September 24). Performances begin at 7.30pm each night, and there is a Saturday matinee at 2.30pm. Tickets cost £5/£4 concs (special rates available for group bookings) from Taunton Tourist Information Centre 01823-336344 and the Arts Centre on 01823-414141.

Versatility showcased

IRELAND'S most dynamic and versatile performer, Dominic Kirwan, returns to The Playhouse Theatre, Weston-super-Mare with his latest fast-moving spectacular show tomorrow (Friday) at 7.30pm.

and musical tastes. The show is a fast moving evening of entertainment where Dominic puts his own brand on some very well known songs as well as introducing some new material.

Dominic Kirwan's show covers a wide range of music including Country, Romantic Ballads, Rock and Roll and the odd Irish Song, providing plenty of material to please an audience of all ages

Tickets to see Dominic Kirwan cost £15 (£14 concs) from the box office on 01934-645544. For further information, visit www.theplayhouse.co.uk or www.dominickirwan.com

Edit your holiday films

THE images of our summer holidays, whether they were captured at home or abroad, stay with us forever.

Alex Richardson will show you how to turn your raw footage into films your family will want to watch again and again.

If, like many, you took a handycam on holiday with you, then the Engine Room, Bridgwater, has the ideal course for you.

There are two one-day courses on offer on Monday, October 3, or Wednesday, November 16, from 10am-4pm.

Using the popular editing software Final Cut Pro, editor

With only six places available on each course you won't get left behind.
